

AI-POWERED LEGAL LEARNING FOR INDIA

VidhanAI

Understanding Indian criminal law shouldn't need a law degree.

Ask. Learn. Watch. Practise — in your own language.

A web platform that turns dense legal text into plain-language answers, voice lessons, comics and quizzes — for every Indian citizen.

The law changed. Nobody explained it.

A 164-year-old law was replaced

In 2023 India replaced the Indian Penal Code with the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita. Almost every section was renumbered and reworded.

Legal language is hard to read

Sections are written in formal, archaic English — dense for students and nearly impossible for an ordinary citizen to act on.

It only exists in English

Most legal resources ignore India's regional languages, leaving out the people who most need to know their rights.

Built for four kinds of people

Law & CLAT aspirants

Need drills, chapter-wise study and old-vs-new comparisons.

Everyday citizens

Want a plain answer to "what happens if...?"

Police & paralegal staff

Need fast lookups: punishment, bailable, cognizable.

Curious learners

Learn better from comics, quizzes and a talking tutor.

How VidhanAI works — in three steps

You ask

Type or speak your question in plain words — in English, Hindi, Tamil, Kannada, Telugu, Marathi or Malayalam.

We find the real law

VidhanAI searches a verified database of 935 IPC and BNS sections and picks the ones that actually apply.

You get it explained

The answer comes back in everyday language — with the exact section, punishment and a real-life example.

Every answer is grounded in the real law text — the AI is not allowed to invent sections.

Six ways to learn the law

Ask AI

Chat with a legal assistant that cites real sections.

Law Tutor

A voice teacher who walks you through each chapter.

Comic Story

Turns a law into a 6-panel illustrated story.

IPC ↔ BNS Compare

See exactly what changed between old and new law.

Quiz Hub

Practise with quizzes, XP, badges and streaks.

Know Your Rights

Everyday legal awareness and safety tips.

Ask AI — your legal doubt, answered

Ask anything about
Indian criminal law,
in your own words.

Answers you can trust

Every reply quotes the actual BNS or IPC section it came from, so nothing is made up.

Explains, doesn't just quote

Tells you what the section means, the punishment, and whether it is bailable — in plain words.

Ask by voice, in your language

Speak the question instead of typing, and hear the answer read back to you.

Example: "My landlord locked my belongings inside the flat — what can I do?"

Law Tutor — a teacher who talks

JD teaches BNS and IPC
chapter by chapter,
out loud.

A real classroom flow

JD introduces the chapter, teaches each section, then asks a question to check you understood.

Stop and ask anytime

Interrupt mid-lesson with a doubt — JD answers it and carries on where it left off.

Ends with a test and a badge

A 10-question assessment closes each chapter, with feedback on what to revise.

Speaks all 7 supported languages in their own script — not just English in an Indian accent.

Comic Story — the law as a story

One legal section,
six illustrated panels,
one clear lesson.

A story you remember

Crime → impact → investigation → legal action → outcome → lesson, with the same characters throughout.

Speech bubbles you can read

Real dialogue is laid over the artwork, so the story reads like an actual comic.

Ask about what you're seeing

A built-in explainer walks through the panels and why the law applies.

Built for learners who remember pictures far better than paragraphs.

IPC ↔ BNS — see what changed

The old law and the new law, placed side by side.

Find the new number fast

Cheating was IPC 420 — now BNS 318. The tool maps old sections to new ones instantly.

Spot the real differences

Renumbering, changed punishments and reworded definitions are highlighted, not buried.

A plain-language summary

An AI summary explains what the change means in practice.

935 sections mapped: 577 from the IPC 1860 and 358 from the BNS 2023.

Seven languages, in their own script

English	हिन्दी	தமிழ்	ಕನ್ನಡ	తెలుగు	मराठी	മലയാളം
English	Hindi	Tamil	Kannada	Telugu	Marathi	Malayalam

Not just translated — actually taught.

Lessons, comics, quizzes and the AI tutor's voice all work in every language above.

A specialised Indian-language AI writes each script correctly, so a Malayalam lesson reads as natural Malayalam — not as English words in Malayalam letters.

Three parts, one platform

What users see

The website — home page, Ask AI, tutor, comics, quizzes and your profile.

Works on phone and laptop.

The brain

Stores all 935 law sections, finds the right one, and asks the AI to explain it simply.

Keeps every answer tied to real law.

The control room

An admin panel to manage law entries, users, reviews and see platform activity.

Used by the team, not the public.

legal codes
mapped end to end

Every section carries its punishment, whether it is bailable, whether police can arrest without a warrant, and a plain-language explanation with a real-life example.

Why this matters

Legal awareness is self-defence

Knowing which section applies — and what it actually means — is the difference between being taken advantage of and standing your ground.

The BNS transition affects everyone

Police, students and citizens are all working with renumbered law. A clear IPC ↔ BNS map removes a real, current source of confusion.

Language should not be a barrier

A citizen in Kerala or Karnataka deserves the same clarity as one in Delhi — in the language they actually think in.

VidhanAI's goal is simple: make the law readable by the people it governs.
